Introduction:

Many of the rookery website functions are available without logging-in, e.g. rookery data can be viewed, references listed and the majority of reports and enquiries can be run. However, if you want to add, amend or delete rookery data you must first log-in.

How To Log-in:

Click on the 'LogIn' button in the sidebar menu on the left-hand side of the page. The sidebar menu and this button will be available on all pages while the user is not logged-in.

WELCOME
In 2013 I organised a rookery survey in Bedfordshire, which, with the help of Bedfordshire Bird Club members, has continued annually. Rookeries in Bedfordshire had only previously been surveyed as part of national studies. Data for the earliest survey, in 1944-46, was extracted from the original field sheets at the Alexander Library in Oxford while that for the more recent surveys (1975,1980 and 1996) was supplied by the British Trust for Ornithology (BTO).

IDEAS & BUGS
Producing this website has been a labour of love. I have searched the web for references to earlier rookery surveys and have incorporated many of the features from those surveys. If you have any ideas for improving this website or you have stumbled across a bug, please use the Contact Form to get in touch. Thank you.

Enter user name and password. User name is not case sensitive, i.e. Roger may be entered as ROGER or roger or any other combination of upper and lower case characters. It will be transformed to uppercase however entered. This is because the username is stored on the database in uppercase in order to simplify subsequent testing for unique user name. However, password is case sensitive.

Click on the 'Login' button. This will open the rookery list page showing the rookeries recorded in your home county (as selected when you registered). The sidebar menu on the right-hand side of the page will include extra options, e.g.

- My Details where user may enter their contact details and which may be displayed in the Rookery Contacts list
- My Weblinks where user may enter links to their website, blog etc
- Rookery Contacts displays list of users who have entered their contact details and indicated that they may be displayed so others can get in touch
- Import Data Includes functions that allow bulk import of rookery data or rook references. Also provided are templates of the import files
